The Connaught Rangers (Pensions) Act, 1936

The Connaught Rangers (88th Foot & 94th Foot) was a unit of the British Army, serving as Line Infantry from 1793 to 1922. It was formed as an Irish Regiment of the British Army by the amalgamation in 1881 of the 88th Regiment of Foot (Connaught Rangers) and the 94th Regiment of Foot. Its 2 Regular Battalions and the Reserve Battalions had their home Depot at Renmore Barracks, Galway. It was disbanded in 1922 upon the formation of the Irish Free State and the regimental colours were laid up at Windsor Castle.

On 28 June 1920, five men from C Company, the 1st Battalion at Wellington Barracks, Jalandhar, Punjab, India decided to protest against the effects of martial law in Ireland. The protest spread to a second company of the battalion which was based at Solon. In a rush on the armoury at Wellington Barracks, Privates Patrick Smythe and Peter Sears were shot dead. In all 88 mutineers from both companies were tried by General Court Martial on 20 August 1920: 19 men were sentenced to death, one Private James Daly was executed by firing squad and the other 18 had their sentences commuted to penal servitude for life, 59 were sentenced to periods ranging from life to 21 years, 15 years and 3 years imprisonment- some of which cases were commuted to lesser sentences and 10 were acquitted.

The Connaught Rangers (Pensions) Act, 1936 was enacted by the Oireachtas of Saorstát Éireann to provide for the “payment of pensions, allowances, and gratuities to or in respect of certain former members of the 1st Battalion, The Connaught Rangers, and to make provision for other matters aforesaid”.

The following is a listing of ex members of the 1st Battalion and/or their dependants who applied to the Department of Defence for recompense under the Act, 1936.
